Rivalry Defined in Two Words: Giants, Dodgers

A new age dawned in 1946 - a new world order had been sealed in A new age Bretton Woods, and a new baseball order was soon to fallow with the debut of Jackie Robinson in Brooklyn. Thrust into the vortex of this new age of baseball were two minor league franchises in Manchester and Nashua, whose rivalry reflected the intensity of that of their parent clubs, the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers. In a multi-part series that will continue all week in The Union Leader, staff sports writer Vin Sylvia takes a look back at the Summer of 1946, when baseball still enjoyed a measure of innocence and a number of future legends happened to pass through New Hampshire on their way to making baseball history. —Ed.

E HAD THROWN his last professional pitch almost 55 years earlier, but on a chilly afternoon in May of 1946, John "Phenomenal" Smith was handed a baseball for another assignment.

More than 3,000 fans had filed into Athletic Field what is now Gill Stadium - by the time Smith, the "Father of Manchester baseball," cocked his arm and tossed a pitch to Manchester Mayor Josaphat T. Benoit. New Hampshire Governor Charles M. Dale called the ceremonial pitch a strike, summoning cheers from the Athletic Field grandstand.

Minutes later, Roy Bridges of the Manchester Giants fired the first pitch of the New England League season. Professional baseball had returned to New Hampshire.

A SEASON TICKET to the Manchester Glants in 1946 cost $30, five dollars of which went to Uncle Sam.

World War II was over and the baby boom was yet to begin. Among the veterans who had returned home from Europe and Africa and the Pacific were hundreds of professional baseball players. They had done their part to make the world safe for democracy, and now it was time to get back to the serious business

With major leaguers returning from the war to reclaim their jobs, the minor leagues were bursting at the seams with veterans on their way down and youngsters on their way up. One of the first offspring of the postwar baseball boom was the New England League.

The new league was made up of eight teams, including three franchises with major league affiliates - the Manchester Giants, Nashua Dodgers and Lynn, Mass. Red Sox. The rest of the league was comprised of two other teams from Massachusetts, Fall River and Lawrence: two from Rhode Island, Pawtucket and Providence; and Portland, Maine. The league was given Class B status, which at that time meant that it was two or three levels below major league ball.

Throughout the summer of 1946, crowds packed their way into Athletic Field and Nashua's Holman Stadium, where the Dodgers catcher Roy Campanella and pitcher Don Newcombe were making history.

It was the first summer of integrated professional baseball, and while Jackie Robinson prepared to break the major league color barrier with Montreal of the International League, the Brooklyn Dodgers' top farm team, Campanella and Newcombe were leading Nashua to the New England League championship.

Campanella would follow Robinson's path through Montreal to Brooklyn in 1948, and Newcombe would join the big league Dodgers in '49, but while their careers ascended, the New England League's gate receipts dwindled. As radio would bring major league baseball into more and more homes, teams would drop out of the league. The Manchester Giants would become the Manchester Yankees prior to the 1948 season, and the league

Carter Content as Indian — for Now

AD THE CHICAGO CUBS called up Joe Carter 25 days earlier in 1983, the slugging outfielder probably would be giving the Boston Red Sox his uniform sizes about now to prepare for next year. Those 25 days cost Carter the chance to become a free agent at the end of this season and thus he appears destined to remain with the Cleveland Indians next year instead of coming to play

The Indians' outfielder, who is hitting .250 with 21 homers and 70 RBI this year, said he dreams about playing in the Back Bay ballyard, where he is a career .350 hitter with 13 homers. He is the only visiting player ever to hit three homers in a single Fenway game twice.

full-time at Fenway Park, where he has avowed

"I've thought about it, but not since the season started," Carter said before Friday's game at Fenway. "I know it would benefit me to play here, but until that time comes. I'm not going to think about it. I'd be daydreaming, and right now we can't afford to have anybody daydreaming.

Cleveland fans haven't helped sway his feelings about remaining with the team by booing

Will the cool reception make it easier to leave

"Ha-ha! That remains to be seen," he said with a smile. "We'll cross that path when we get to it, but right now I'm here and things are going well for us. We're in the pennant race, and it's August 4th; what more can you ask for?'

Being in a pennant race is something new for Carter, whose Indians teams have finished sixth, seventh, fifth, seventh and sixth since he joined them in 1984.

"It makes every game interesting coming to the ball park knowing you're in the pennant race," Carter said. "Any time you don't win it's

3 Homers Help Lift Sox, 10-2

By JEFF HORRIGAN Staff Sports Writer

BOSTON - Keyed by several uncharacteristic performances and performers, the Boston Red Sox snapped their three-game losing streak yesterday with a 10-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians at Fenway

Playing with a lineup featuring Danny Heep as the cleanup hitter, Luis Rivera in the sixth spot and Randy Kutcher and Rich Gedman bringing up the rear, the Sox scored seven runs in the seventh inning to break open a close game. The big inning featured two clutch hits with the bases loaded, snapping the team's 2-for-37 slump in that situation. Rivers and Satcher RED SOX, Page 2C

Another Comeback Win for LeBel Stars

PORTLAND, Maine - The cardiac kids needed another jump start Saturday, but the beat goes on.

Mark Thompson's three-run double in the bottom of the sixth inning boosted the LeBel All-Stars of Manchester. N.H., to a 7-4 victory over Warwick, R.I.. in the opener of the New England 13-year-old Babe Ruth Baseball Tour-

It was the seventh game in nine that Manchester has come from behind to win in the late innings.

Sunday at 5:30 p.m. Manchester meets Norwood, Mass., a 4-3 winner over East Hartford, Conn. in one of Saturday's other preliminary contests.

Manchester's Ken Delgenio pitched four innings of relief allowing just one hit for the win. His teammates rallied for five runs in the sixth after trailing 3-0 early Manchester manager Colin Burke, whose secret to success with these 13-year-olders is closer to voodoo magic than the traditional focus on fundamentals, said, "It's really weird. We're starting to expect this sort of thing. You tell yourself you shouldn't, but these kids just don't panic. It's the sort of team that surprises people in tournaments."

Warwick jumped on Manchester starter Rich Winn. Jeff Tully's triple with two outs in the first scored Mark Krause (single) and Steve Shelton (walk). Winn had a tinge of soreness in his arm to start the game.

South a Leg Up In NH LL Final

By JOE SULLIVAN Sunday News Sports

Rochester East manager Russ Solsky delivered two telling quotes to explain Manchester South's 4-2 win over his team in the State Little League Finals opener played yesterday at Manchester East. Game two will be played today at East at 1 p.m.

Quote number one: "They swung the bats better than I thought they would."

Quote number two: "Romio Dagher is the best pitcher we've faced this year - and one of the four or five best I've seen since I've been in Little League." Solsky hit bulls-eyes with both statements.

South solved talented Rochester righthander Brian Poire for six hits. Number two hitter Tom Masiero piled up half of them. He drove home two runs and scored one to lead the offense.

Bottom-of-the-third-inning replacement Scott Sides drilled two hits and drove home one

In the ten previous games we had played. Scott had only one hit." South manager Pete Jobin said after the game. "Scott hadn't been striking out much but he wasn't having any luck at the plate. That's why we sat him down at the start of the game."

Manchester took a 1-0 lead in the top of the third. Centerfielder Jeff Lebel was hit by a pitch to open the frame. Two outs later. Masiero shorthopped the leftfield fence with a 0-2 RBI smash.

South elevated the lead to 2-0 in the fourth. An infield error (so the official scorer said) allowed Brett Maser to reach first. Poire then walked Jeff Remillard and Dagher to load the bases. A Victory Quaff For Spicy Living

By FERNANDO CROSA Sunday News Sports

SALEM - G.L. Ohrstrom's Quaff proved her favorite billing to be true, cruising past a pack of 12 fillies and mares to win the $100,000 Spicy Living Sweepstakes and her first United States win at Rockingham Park

Really Swift captured the $20,000 Henry Wajda Stakes for 3-year olds at one mile and one sixteenth in the sixth race, but the race that more than 5,000 horse racing enthusiasts turned out to see was the 10th of the 11-race program.

Quaff's comfortable victory represents the third major race this year at Rockingham Park in which the favorite posted blueribbon honors. Both winners of the Rockingham Park Budweiser Breeders Cup and the New Hampshire Sweepstakes were considerable favorites going into their respective races.

The 4-year-old Kay Erik Jensen-trained filly completed the fourth running of the mile and one sixteenth turf event for 3-year olds and upward in 1:44, setting a new Spicy Living Sweepstakes record. Sunny Roberta ran last year's Spicy. Living in 1:44.8.

Quaff came to the United States from France last November and finished second in the Grade III Mt. Washington Handicap at Laurel in her American racing debut, but was just shy of putting it all together for a first-place finishing

Cycling: '88 Olympian Takes Spill

Scott McKinley, leader of the 1988 U.S. Olympic eycling road team, crashed into a post with six laps to go in a 42-mile race in Sacramento, Calif., Friday night, fracturing 12 ribs. McKinley, 20, was in stable condition yesterday at the University of California at Davis Medical Center. Doctors said he would be out of action for several months but did not consider the injuries career-threatening. Besides massive rib damage, the hometown rider had a collapsed left lung and internal bleeding, said Dr. Daniel Benson. However, the bleeding had stablized. McKinley was in stable condition and would probably not require surgery. The accident for the pre-race favorite occurred a year to the day that McKinley won the U.S. Olympic Trials in Spokane, Wash., to lead a three-man road team to Seoul. He was to leave for Europe next week to finish the season with other members of the 7-Eleven team

Football: Bucs Blame Cocaine for Slide

Tampa Bay Buccaneers owner Hugh Culverhouse and other team executives blame cocaine use by players at the start of the decade a factor in the franchise's decline, a newspaper reported yesterday, Culverhouse, assistant team President Phil Krueger and former head coach John McKay told the Tampa Tribune that several members of the 1979 Bucs, NFC Central Division winners, became victims of their own success. "It was 'Party Time, USA," said Culverhouse, who made it clear that such problems have been erased. McKay said: "There's no question we had a drug problem. There were some fine players that made some mistakes." Tampa Bay finished the 1979 regular season with a 10-6 record. The following season the Bucs went 5-10-1

Horse Racing: Park Avenue Joe Wins Raceoff

Park Avenue Joe and Probe raced to the first dead heat in the 64-year history of the Hambletonian in a raceoff yesterday at the Meadowlands in East Rutherford, N.J. Park Avenue Joe, however. was declared winner because of better finishes in the earlier heats. Park Avenue Joe was second in the first heat and winner of the second heat. Probe won the first heat but was ninth in the second after breaking stride. That meant Park Avenue Joe earned half of the $1,131,000 purse. The two heat winners put on a spine-tingling stretch duel in their raceoff in 96-degree heat. Stewards called for two prints of the photo finish and deliberated for several minutes before declaring the race for 3-year-old trotters a dead heat. Probe won the first heat by a head over Park Avenue Joe. Park Avenue Joe won the second heat by 11/4 lengths over Peace Corps as Probe finished 14 lengths back. To win the Hambletonian, a trotter must win two heats. So, Probe and Park Avenue Joe returned for their raceoff before an estimated crowd of 30,000.

Sox Waive Romero; Rice Joins Long DL

Staff Sports Writer

BOSTON - If only Ed Romero could rip the cover off the ball like he could rip the cover off a Gatorade cooler.

Romero, a 10-year veteran who has been with the Red Sox since 1986, was put on waivers for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release before vesterday's game against the Cleveland Indians at Fenway Park.

The Sox also put designated hitter Jim Rice on the 21-day disabled list for recurring soreness in his right elbow, which was operated on in early

Second baseman Marty Barrett and outfielder Carlos Quintana were recalled from Pawtucket to take their places. Barrett, who had been with the PawSox rehabilitating his injured right knee — which underwent arthroscopic surgery in June started vesterday at DH, batting second.

On June 11. Romero angrily hurled a Gatorade cooler from the dugout to the Yankee Stadium turf and demanded to be traded after the game when manager Joe Morgan pulled him for a pinch

"I tried to make a trade for him for two weeks but wasn't able to do so," general manager Lou Gorman said. "There were a couple of clubs interested at one point, but they later withdrew their offers. We exhausted every possibility.'

Romero appeared in 46 games this season and had a .212 batting average, no homers and six RBIs. Upset with his lack of playing time since Morgan took over last year, Romero said he is happy to be released.

"More than happy — yes sir — because I'm going to be out of the agony I've been in for the last year and a half," he said while cleaning out his locker. "Not only not playing, but the agony of having a manager who didn't have confidence in Morgan refused to shoot back at Romero.

"I thought he was a pretty good utility infielder," the skipper said. "He probably thought I didn't play him enough, but that was the role he was in."

Morgan said he wasn't surprised Gorman couldn't trade for Romero.

"Why should anyone give anthing to us when they can sign him for nothing when he gets released?" he reasoned. "I think he'll be picked up. Probably by a contender.

Rice, meanwhile, went 11-for-49 (.224) after being activated July 21, to drop to .234 on the season. He has just three homers - none since April 25 - and 28 runs batted in.

"Rice has still got a great deal of inflammation in the elbow and a great deal of soreness, Gorman said. "He really had trouble extending the elbow at all when he swings and he admitted that it's been bothering him quite a bit."

The G.M. said Rice may have rushed back too quickly from the surgery to remove bone chips.

"Jimmy's a great competitor and he wanted to come back so bad to help the club and contribute," Gorman said. "I think he came back a little too quickly."

The Red Sox had considered disabling Dwight Evans, who has been bothered by a sciatic nerve problem, instead of Rice. The right fielder underwent a CAT Scan and was put in traction yesterday at Umass Medical Center in Worces-

He is scheduled to be out of traction this morning and released this afternoon. Evans is expected to rejoin the team tomorrow in Kansas

"I've never been with a club in my 30 years that's had so many injuries," Gorman said. "In my opinion, if the club was totally sound, we'd be in first place.

RED SOX-INDIANS NOTES: Carl Yastrzemski will have his #8 retired today at Fenway, joining Ted Williams, Joe Cronin and Bobby Doerr on the right field facade. The ceremony will begin at 1:05 p.m. and will be carried live by WSBK-TV, Channel 38. The game will begin at 1:45 p.m.

Yaz will be presented an American flag flown at both the U.S. Capitol and Fenway Park and will receive a telegram from President Bush.

Oil Can Boyd threw early batting practice yesterday and impressed Morgan.

"He was nice and loose," the manager siad. "One or two more times like that and he'll be ready to go pitch somewhere.'

The Can will travel with the team to Kansas

City and throw B.P. at least once before joining Pawtucket for rehabilitation.

Kevin Romine, who started nearly every game the past month and a half, was forced out of the lineup yesterday with strained ligaments in his left hand. He came on as a pinch runner and defensive replacement for Danny Heep in the 7-run seventh inning.

The outfielder said the injury hampers his swing, evidenced by his 0-for-10 slump. "I couldn't get the bat around on the fastball" said Romine, who had only three hits in his past 26 at-bats. "It got to the point where I'm not helping the team anymore." He is expected to be out for one or two more

The Sox still are waiting on Eric Hetzel, to see whether he should go on the D.L. The room hurler, who has a sore muscle in his inner elbow doesn't want to be disabled. A decision should be made one way or the other tomorrow.

Luis Rivera extended his hitting streak to a career-high nine games with a bases-loaded double in the seventh.

Morgan switched Ellis Burks and Wade Bogos in the lineup, moving Boggs to leadoff and Burks

"I returned Boggs to the number one hole and hopefully, he'll stay there the rest of the year and be a catalyst, as they say," Morgan said. "What he gets hot, everyone else seems to catch on and he's been known to be hot.'

Number 8 was worn by 21 players being Yastrzemski (some later switched to other numbers): Urbane Pickering, 3B, 1931; Bennet Tate, C, 1932; Otis Miller, Inf., 1932; Johnny Gooch, C, 1933; Bucky Walters, 3B, 1934, Red Kellet, Inf., 1934; Babe Dahlgren (Lou General successor), 1B, 1935; Doc Cramer, OF, 1955 10: Lou Finley, OF-1B, 1941-42; Al Simmons, OF 1943; Bob Johnson, OF, 1944-45; Hal Wagner, C. 1946-47; Birdie Tebbetts, C, 1947-50; Mike Guerra, C, 1951; Tom Wright, OF, 1951; Aaron Robinson, C, 1951; Hal Bevan, Inf., 1952; Rilly Consolo, Inf., 1953-54; Sammy White, C, 1955; Pete Daley, C, 1956-59; Ed Sadowski, C, 1960: Carl Yastrzemski, OF-1B, 1961-83.

Motorcycling: Schwantz Takes British GP Pole

American Kevin Schwantz earned his eighth poje position of the season, qualifying for the top spot in today's British 500cc motorcycle Grand Prix in Donington, England. The 25-year-old Texan yesterday toured the 2.5-mile Leicestershire circuit on his Suzuki in one minute, 34.05 seconds, averaging 95.69 mph to win the pole. Eddie Lawson, the reigning world champion who is bidding for his fourth 500cc title, was just 0.25 seconds slower with current championship leader and last year's Donington winner Wayne Rainey a further 0.54 seconds back. World sidecar champions from Britain Steve Webster and Tony Hewitt had to settle for second place on the grid after being overhauled by Swiss pair Rolf Biland and Kurt Waltisperg.

Soccer: Arsenal, Argentina Squad To Meet

English League champion Arsenal takes on Independiente of Argentina today in Miami, Fla., in the first game since 1986 between teams from the two nations, adversaries in the Falklands war of 1982. The game tonight, billed as the Zenith Cup, is part of the Arsenal manager's effort to line up as much international competition as possible. Assenal, as well as all English soccer clubs, is barred from European competition as a result of rowydism by fans. A sparse crowd is expected for The event at Joe Robbie Stadium, but owner Joe Robbie hopes to build a core of fans. Sax Rallies Yankees, 5-4

From Wire Reports

Steve Sax collected three hits, scored twice and stole two bases, and Ken Phelps slugged a pinch-hit, two-run homer in the eighth inning Saturday, rallying the New York Yankees to a 5-4 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays in Toronto.

Winner Andy Hawkins, 13-10, worked seven innings and allowed three runs on six hits. Dave Righetti pitched the final two innings for his 18th save.

With Toronto leading 3-2. Duane Ward, 4-9, who was inserted in the game to start the eighth, walked Mel Hall on four pitches to open the inning. One out later, Phelps, hitting for Randy Velarde, drilled a 1-0 delivery into the right-field stands for his fifth home run of the season and third pinch-hit homer.

Toronto rallied but failed to tie the score in the bottom of the eighth. Tony Fernandez opened with a triple to the wall in right-center field off Hawkins, and Righetti relieved. After Mookie Wilson grounded out, Kelly Gruber lifted a fly ball to short left field, and Hall caught the ball and threw out Fernandez at the plate.

The Yankees added a run in the ninth on Steve Balboni's sacrifice fly. The Blue Jays countered with a run in the bottom of the ninth when Bell scored on a double-play.

New York opened a 1-0 lead in the first on Balboni's RBI groundout off Mike Flanagan.

The game was played before a record Toronto crowd of 49,155.

Padres 4, Dodgers 2

Marvell Wynne and Chris James hit home runs Saturday as the San Diego Padres ended the Los Angeles Dodgers' three-game wining streak Saturday with a 4-2 victory in Los Angeles.

Greg Harris, 4-6, held the Dodgers to just four hits in 7½ innings before Mark Davis came on to gain his career-high 29th save. Harris struck out four and walked none.

Harris, who had lost all three of his previous starts this year, began the season with 29 straight relief appearances before taking over injured Eric Show's spot in the starting rotation.

Giants 7, Astros 0

Right-hander Mike LaCoss pitched seven shutout innings yesterday and the San Francisco Giants continued their mastery of the Houston Astros at Candlestick Park, 7-0.

LaCoss, 6-7, yielded four singles in his seven-inning stint, and reliever Ernie Camacho completed the shutout, giving the Astros only one earned run in their

Cubs 4, Pirates 2

Shawon Dunston's single just inside the right field line drove in the go-ahead run in Chicago's three-run ninth inning against Pittsburgh bullpen ace Bill Landrum yesterday, rallying the Cubs to a 4-2 victory over the Pirates in Pittsburgh.

The Cubs won for the 12th time in 15 games, but the victory could be costly because major-league save leader Mitch Williams, going for his 29th save, had to leave the game with one out in the ninth inning when he was hit above the left ear with a line drive off the bat of Jeff King.

Mets 3, Expos 2

Pinch-hitter Darryl Strawberry tied the score with a double in the eighth inning and Kevin Elster's run-scoring single off relief ace Tim Burke gave New York a dramatic 3-2 victory over Montreal in New York last night as the Expos fell into a first-place tie with Chicago in the National League East.

Mark Langston had allowed six hits and struck out six in seven innings when he was replaced by Burke, 6-2.

Kevin McReynolds led off the eighth with a single, and, after Tim Teufel failed to bunt him over, Strawberry doubled to left. Strawberry moved to third on a grounder and scored on Elster's single.

The victory moved the Mets within five games of first place.

The Expos scored twice in the second inning off Ron Darling, 9-9, with one run unearned. Tim Raines led off with a triple and scored on Tim Wallach's sacrifice fly Andres Galarraga then walked, stole second and scored when second baseman Top Athol, Mass., Keith Miller bobbled Spike Owen's routine grounder with two out.

McReynolds led off the bottom of the second with his 11th homer, giving him nine RBIs in his last four games.

Langston, whom the Mets nearly acquired during spring training, walked the first two batters in the fourth but got out of the jam by striking out Barry Lyons and Elster.

In the seventh with runners on first and second and two outs, Langston got Howard Johnson to ground out to first after the Mets' RBI leader fouled off six pitches.

would fold at the end of 1949.

That, however, was in the future. In the postwar cuphoria of 1946, minor league baseball thrived in New Hampshire.

"I covered games after that season, but that's the one I remember best," said retired Sunday News sports editor Bob Hilbard, the original Giants beat writer for the old Manchester Union. "That was the best year."

While Campanella and Newcombe were the league's most publicized players and were obviously destined for major league stardom, neither one dominated the league. Campanella batted 290 with 13 home runs and 96 runs batted in. Newcombe's record was 14-4, with 104 strikeouts and an earned run average of 2.21, fifth best in the league.

2 "There were good players everywhere," said C. Edward Bourassa, the longtime register of probate for Hillsborough County, who founded the Manchester Giants and served as team president. "It was a good league."

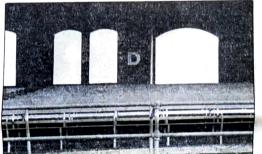

"I think Campanella and Newcombe both got big signing bonuses, and there was a lot of publicity because teams were just beginning to sign negroes." said John Raczka, a lifelong Manchester resident and original member of the Giants.

"They had played for the Kansas City Monarchs in the old Negro League, so they had two or three years of professional ball under their belts. They had the publicity, and they were good, but Roy.Campanella had a tough time in this league. He'd hit these long. Yvars and Charlie Fox all played in the majors at one time or another. In fact the presence of both Yvars and Fox on the Manchester roster created some turmoil, as Yvars decided that the town wasn't big enough for the two of them.

"Fox was a little older than Yvars, and when we went to New Jersey for spring training. Fox was pounding his mitt with his six years' experience and Yvars was the young, scrappy bulldog,"—Razzka said. "Gruber went with experience.

"When it got to the point where Fox was hitting .240 and stillplaying as the number one catcher, and Yvars was hitting .310 and serving as his backup or playing in the outfield, Yvars jumped the club and went home. They had to talk him into coming back."

Yvars wound up hitting .318, Fox .230. Yvars went on to an eight-year major league career with the Giants and Cardinals. Fox, who played three big league games for the New York Giants in 1942, never made it back.

Yvars ended another playing career in a more abrupt manner, changing the title of Nashua's Walter Alston from "player/manager" to simply "manager."

"Walter was playing first base and Yvars hit a little pop-updown the first base line," remembered Campanella. "Alston was going to catch the ball, and Yvars ran right into him and knocked him down. Alston got up again and the benches emptied. Nothing much happened, but Alston never played again."

Alston did, however, go on to big league success, managing the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers from 1954 to 1976.

The Manchester-Nashua rivalry didn't approach the New York-Brooklyn feud, but it was, nevertheless, a rivalry.

"Sure there was a rivalry," asserted Campanella.

"I never faced Newcombe," Raczka continued, "Every time we faced Nashua, they'd have someone else going for them. They had a fellow named (George) Brown, who was even faster than Newcombe, and every time we'd play Nashua, we'd say, 'Let's hope we get Newcombe instead of Brown'

Alas, George Brown never threw a pitch in a major league game. Newcombe, on the other hand, went on to become the first winner of the Cy Young Award.

The New England League's best offensive player was Giants outfielder Maurice "Mo" Mozzali, who came within three home runs of winning the triple crown. Mozzali led the league with a 356 batting average and 118 runs batted in, and belted 19 homers, three less than league leader Lucien Belanger of Lawrence. Neither Mozzali nor Belanger ever played in the big leagues.

The league's best pitcher in 1946 was Lynn's Walker Cress. whose 19-3 record, 174 strikeouts and 1.98 ERA gave him the pitching equivalent of the triple crown. Two years later, Cress was in the majors with Cincinnati, but he never again approached his New England League statistics. In two years with the Reds, he compiled an 0-1 record.

Manchester's Bob Cain was the only other member of the New England League Class of '46 to make it to the big leagues. In a six-year career with the Chicago White Sox, Detroit Tigers and St Louis Browns, the lefthander won 37 games and lost 44. He also gained some measure of fame as the man who pitched to midget pinch-hitter Eddie Gaedel, whose one at-bat in the major leagues was one of Bill Veeck's early stunts when he owned the Browns.

Cain, however, wasn't the ace of the Manchester staff. That designation went to Bridges, billed in the Giants team program as the "Strikeout King of the New England League." Bridges' 154 strikeouts actually placed him second in the league to Cress, but his 17 wins topped the Giants' staff.

"Roy Bridges had a hell of a temper, but he had a hell of a fastball, too," recalled Hilliard, "Bridges — to me — had as much speed as Feller, but I think his temper got the best of him.

As Raczka remembers it, it was Manchester manager Hal Gruber who got the best of Bridges.

'Roy Bridges was the best pitching prospect I saw," Raczka said. "I saw Feller in Florida during my second year in spring training, and Bridges reminded me so much of him. Bob Feller and Roy Bridges were so similar, they even walked alike; they didn't walk, they sprang.

"Bridges, with three or four days' rest, would go out and strike out 15. But as the season wore on, Gruber began to use him more and more, and he wasn't as fast. I told him, 'Roy, you shouldn't pitch so much. It's going to ruin your arm.' But he'd pitch seven, eight innings, and two days later they'd ask him, 'Roy can you pitch an inning?' He was always available until he came to the park one day and couldn't lift his arm. That was the end of Roy.

Raczka slowly shook his head, mourning the end of what might have been a great career.

"The manager's job was to develop pitchers," he said, "not to pitch their arms out.

In addition to Campanella, the New England League boasted some quality catchers. Lynn's Matt Batts and Manchester's Sal

Manchester and Nashua were so close together . . . We had some great games."

Manchester won the initial meeting between the two New-Hampshire teams, 5-4 in 11 innings on a sacrifice fly by Mozalli at Gill, but Nashua had the last laugh. After starting the season by winning their first four games, the Giants finished the regular season in third place, six games behind the Red Sox and five behind the Dodgers.

Lynn swept Manchester in a three-game playoff semifinal, while Nashua easily disposed of fourth-place Pawtucket. The Dodgers clinched their berth in the championship series by blanking the Slaters, 3-0, on a five-hitter by Newcombe.

The Governor's Cup series was more hotly contested, with the teams swapping victories and Newcombe giving Nashua a 3-2 edge by beating Lynn, 6-3. On Sept. 12, before more more than 4,000 fans at Holman, the Dodgers clinched the Cup, Campanella sparking the 8-2 victory with a two-run single Forty years later, the Boston Red Sox would receive notoriety for hoarding their World Series shares and ignoring the hired help at Fenway Park, but this was 1946, a time when the nation was, perhaps, kinder and gentler. Prior to the New England League playoffs, the wife of Dodgers right fielder Harvey Porter became seriously ill, and was placed in Nashua's Memorial Hospital. Making less than $200 per week as a matter of league policy, the Dodgers unanimously voted to give Porter their entire playoff shares to cover his wife's medical expenses.

The game

"It's my favorite part. The manager has to be aware of all situations. The outs, who's in there, where the defense is positioned. Handling the pitching. It's all going on at one

Characteristics of a good coach

Basically, coaches are managerial apprentices and are chosen to complement the manager. Coaches are selected for their mastery of a particular skill-pitching. batting, base running, etc. A good coach is a strong figure who has gained the respect of the players, has confidence in himself and a complete knowledge of baseball. He must establish a personal rapport with the players without losing any measure of authority, and must be able to make splitsecond decisions that in many cases may determine the outcome of a game. One of the greatest assets of a top coach is the ability to recognize when a player is slumping, and through his role as a leader, help the player improve.

During the game

- Base coaches remind runners of the number of outs, the type of move a particular pitcher has, which outfielder has the best throwing arm, and when to tag on a fly ball. Once the ball is hit, a base coach is allowed to move out of the coaching box and set himself in line with the runner's vision.
- Coaches check constantly with the dugout to pick up the manager's signals for particular moves he might want to make during the progress of the game. The manager may want to execute a hit-and-run or a steal. The signals for these types of plays are relayed from the dugout by the manager to his base coaches. Usually it is the third-base coach who will relay signs from the bench coach to the hitters and runners on their team. Although runners are generally responsible for knowing when to advance, they sometimes cannot see the defense or the ball, and that's when a good base coach becomes just as important as the players in the lineup.

Credibility: "It's a key factor for a manager. You lose it, you're done. You gain it by being honest with your players. If you start jerking the guys around, you might be able to get by once or twice. But if they catch on, you're lost

Working with the organization: The manager has to coordinate and be aware of the farm system Coordinate with the scouting director and his top people Communicate what type of players Motivation: "There are all different types of managers. You can't say that the fiery guy is better than the quiet one. The No. 1 characteristic from a manager is that he's got to get total effort from his players A manager can know the game stone cold, but it doesn't mean a thing if the effort's not there. A manager can be dumb, but if his players play for him, he's got a chance to be successful. The dummy will beat the genius every

You must have Teaching: * good coaches who are responsible. At the same time, you can't divorce yourself from what's going on. In the end, it's up to the manager to set the style. Are you going to run? Do you want a club swinging from the heels? These are things a manager will determine

Second-guessing himself: "When the game is over. I try to learn three things. I look at the game for what my players did, and for what their players did. Then I check every decision I had to make. I look at the situation. What was I thinking? Did I leave anything out?"

TONY LaRUSSA

Characteristics of a good manager

■ Most experts agree that interpersonal skills are the most important trait of a good manager. Being able to recognize the individual strengths and weaknesses of his players, his confidence in them, and fairness in handling them--more than anything else-will determine the success of a manager and the respect he receives from his players. A manager's psychology of coaching and knowledge of the game will determine much of the success of the team and its players.

Team meetings

Team meetings are an important organizational function of a manager. Prior to the start of a road trip or series of games, a manager will hold team meetings to discuss such things as strengths and weaknesses of opponents, opposing pitchers, how to play certain hitters, which opposing players may not be playing at full strength during the game, and other areas that might provide his team with a competitive edge-in general, his defensive and offensive strategies for that particular series or game.

During the game

One of the most important responsibilities of a manager is to watch his pitcher Knowing when a pitcher is laboring, when he, should be removed, or when he needs a peptalk requires experience and finesse. If a pitcher is having difficulty on the mound, the manager may decide to have the bullpen coach warm up a relief pitcher.

The computer

from the bench coach to the hitters and runners on their team. Although runners are generally responsible for knowing when to advance, they sometimes cannot see the defense or the ball, and that's when a good base coach becomes just as important as the players in the lineup.

A base runner leading off second is responsible for watching the second baseman, but the third-base coach is responsible for warning the runner of the shortstop's position and any possible pickoffs between the pitcher and shortstop. Though not as responsible for advancing the runner, the first-base coach helps the runner find the ball before he takes his leadoff watches for a catcher or pitcher pickoff when the first baseman is playing behind the runner, and watches the second baseman in a bunt situation.

The primary lead

Sacrifice bunt:

The batter's purpose is to advance another runner by occupying the infield. Most sacrifice bunts are hit down the first-base line with a runner on first base, and down the third-base line with runners on first and second.

Bunting for a hit: When the infield is playing deep, a well-placed bunt can mean a base hit. Unlike the sacrifice bunt, the batter hopes to catch the infield unaware. Usually a bunt hit down the third-base line gives the batter more time to beat the throw to first Clemens has a curious way of saying things. Take the following malapropisms from this season as example:

"I was a little erotic (erratic) in the early innings.

"I'm trying to improve in all assets (facets) of the game.

"My statements have been taken out of content (context). Another curious statement was the time he said his gameplan was to hold the opposing team that night to three runs in seven

Tuesday's night game was Kenner Starting Lineup night at Fenway, where the first 15,000 fans entering the park under a certain age received a little plastic figurine of a Red Sox player. While the fans had a choice of Mike Greenwell, Roger Clemens, Wade Boggs, Dwight Evans or Jim Rice, everyone in the préss box was given a souvenir Rice doll. That's ironic because Rice despises the press and the feeling is generally mutual. A few members of the media mutilated their figurines (there was a plastic Rice head being circulated) while another asked if anyone had needles or pins to stick in his Former Harvard and Cincinnati Bengals star Pat McInally is the one making the fortune from those Starting Lineup figures.

Joe Morgan reported this week that the horse named after him about a decade ago ("Manager Joe Morgan") has been renamed, but he doesn't know the new name. He said the horse, now a steeple jumper, will be appearing at the big horse show at Madison Square Garden later this month. Here's guessing that the big, grey pony shows up named either "Skipper Of The Local Nine," "Six Two And Even" or "Fire That Pea.

Eric Hetzel moved his locker for a few days this week from his location near pitchers row to one near the infielders after getting knocked around on Monday. "After that last start, I figured I didn't belong with them," he said.

Reports that opposing players and coaches are trying to convince Mark Langston to leave the Expos when his contract expires at the end of the season and join their teams has prompted the Commissioner's office to circulate a memo (to be posted in the locker room) to all teams warning about the penalties for tampering. Rumors have it that it was mainly directed at the Mets, who wouldn't mind having Dwight Gooden, Frank Viola, Ron Darling and Langston in the same starting rotation.

The Red Sox lead the league in beards grown and shaved this year. The list includes Wade Boggs, Mike Greenwell, Rich Gedman, Joe Price, Roger Clemens, Rob Murphy, Nick Esasky, Ellis Burks, Lee Smith, Mike Smithson and Wes Gardner.

When former minor-league pitchers like Baltimore's Dave Johnson are called up to face the Red Sox, Joe Morgan likes to ask long-time Pawtucket players what they throw. He probably won't be asking Kevin Romine any more.

The first in Enos Slaughter's "Dash to Home" in the 1946 World Series ("Pesky held the ball!") and the second is the New York Mets comeback in Game 6 of the 1986 Series (Bill Buckner's error and Bob Stanley's wild pitch). The American League office is mulling whether to take away a save from Lee Smith. Rules say a relief pitcher can't put himself into a save situation by putting the decisive runner(s) on base. Polishing Their Skills At Super Sports Clinic

PROPER POSITIONING of the foot is demonstrated by Trinity High girls soccer coach Jim Shaughnessy, with the assistance of Katie Barry, 10, of Bedford, one of more than a hundred athletes on hand for the sixth annual Super Sports Clinic sponsored by The Union Leader-New Hampshire Sunday News.

AIRBORNE over the low hurdle is Chris Cote, 10, of Nashua, during the clinic's track and field portion.

F GENIUS can truly be defined as one percent inspiration and 99 percent perspiration, the sixth annual Union Leader-New Hampshire Sunday News Super Sports Clinic was an exercise in brilliance

The dominant element yesterday was perspiration, as more than 100 young athletes toiled in their chosen sports under the inpirational guidance of eight outstanding coaches and advisors on the playing fields at New Hampshire College in Manchester.

High temperatures, oppressive humidity and hard work combined to produce the type of body heat that can only be generated by determined athletes, as they hurdled, half-volleyed and high-fived their way toward athletic excellence.

"All of the coaches are aware of the conditions, and the participants have access to plenty of water at each of the locations," said Donald C. Anderson, community relations manager for the Loeb newspapers.

"Before the activities began, the youngsters also heard a lecture from fitness expert Nick Vailas on the importance of good conditioning, and Dr. Jamie Smolen is also here at the clinic as attending physician, so the athletes are in good hands."

They were also demonstrating good hands, whether it was on the basketball court with Concord High's Bill Haubrich and Goffstown's

Bill Ruwell or on the football field with Merrimack High grid coach Joe Ravcraft.

Good feet were also in evidence on the soccer pitch, where Trinity High's Jim Shaughnessy tutored the young women and Peter Perich of Memorial offered pointers to young male soccer players.

All of the coaches cited the mastering of fundamentals as the greatest hurdle to athletic success, but none put it quite as succinctly as track and field coach John Doria of Spaulding High School

"The 100-meter hurdles event is nothing more than a 100-meter dash with 10 obstacles in the way," he laughed. "You just have to be willing to look past the obstacles to reach your goal."

For many of the athletes, the first goal was lunch, an oasis that lay on the far side of the morning sessions. It included an outdoor barbeeue with all the fixings — burgers, corn on the cob, fresh fruit, chips, soda, plenty of desserts, and a sprinkling of rain for good measure.

Even as the athletes began prepping for the afternoon sessions, plans were being formulated for the seventh annual Super Sports Clinic.

"We're already looking toward another clinic nest year," said Anderson, "and we'll be speaking with the coaches once again to see how we can make the program even better next year."

Manchester South Takes State LL Final Opener, 4-2

Knocked Down — And Out

Masiero bounced a single over the thirdbase bag with one out and moved to second when catcher Matt Grenier walked. Shortstop Justin Bennett steamed a ground ball to short that erased Grenier at second. With runners at first and third. Bennett stole second.

Solsky the Manager said thank-you. With first open, he intentionally walked Maser, who in two previous at-bats had little trouble putting the bat on the ball. Hard.

Remillard, the we'd-ratherpitch-to-him next hitter, slashed the first pitch into centerfield for a single. Masiero scored but Bennett stopped at third. Maser did not stop at second, however, and it was traffic jam time at the hot corner. Bennett anchored himself to the bag as Maser retreated to second. A throwing error allowed him to return to the bag safely - and also opened the way for Bennett to scamper home with his team's fourth run

That was the offense for the winners.

Now to Dagher.

Over the first five innings, he combined with batterymate Grenier to control the game. Of the 15 outs recorded in that hit aswinging bunt in front of the span, 12 came on third strikes. Rochester had two hits in five innings, and one was a bunt.

"I believe our kids came into the game thinking that they couldn't hit Dagher," Solsky said later. "I kept telling them to hang in there. With the heat of the day. I felt he might lose a came to the plate. He didn'telay little off his fastball. I told the kids that if he lost a couple of feet off his fastball, we would then be able to gauge him better

Again, a Solsky bulls-eye quote

Prior to the sixth inning, Rochester East hitters swung at 31 Dagher offerings. On 21 occasions, they missed. Entirely.

East hitters swung the bat seven times - and made contact six times. Dagher's strikeout cruise was over. The help wanted ad went out to his fielders

They responded superbly.

Pinch-hitter Steve Skidds started the bottom of the sixth with a walk. Peter Brent, today's probable pitcher for Rochester, pinch-ran and moved to second on a passed ball and to third on a wild pitch. Corey Beem, at the top of the order, walked. Poire. who was on Dagher's deliveries from the start, ripped a first pitch groundball to short. Bennett-of-the-soft-hands fielded touched second and fired to first looking for two.

No go. Poire was safe and Brent scooted across with Rochester's first run. Ryan Metivier

He moved up on a wild pitch.

The tying run, Geoff Solsky, there long. He singled to center, scoring Poire from third. Kenaly, however, got a late break from second. He rumbled around third as South center fielder Lebel's throw thwacked into the glove of thirdbaseman Masiero.

The throw to the plate made easy work of Kenaly.

Brian (Poire) didn't have his In the Rochester sixth, the good fastball, but he kept us in the game. He threw well,", an up-tempo Solsky said.

Poire finished with six strikeouts. He walked four - one intentionally.

Jobin blamed the East LL mound for Dagher's sixth-inning problems

He kept landing and then sliding," Jobin said. "It got real soft out there by the sixth inning. He was battling the mound."

Dagher finished with a fourhitter. His 12 strikeouts included every Rochester East starter except the left-handed hitting Poire - who has not fanned this year. Anywhere.

We can play better than this," Solsky said before leaving. 'Trust me.

Jutras, Rochester Stay Alive; Bedford Rips Exeter, 9-3

By MARK LABORE

Sunday News Sports KEENE - Jutras Post No. 43 of Manchester and Rochester Post No. 7 went about their business in varied fashion, but the results were the same for the two American Legion teams who staved off elimination from the 1989 State Tournament with losers' bracket victories yesterday at Alumni Field.

Jutras Post played a neareven contest with Manchester foe Post 79 before managing a 7-6 victory Rochester, meanwhile pushed the rightfield scoreboard beyond its capabilities run maximum display) and butgunned Nashua's Coffey Post, 24-7.

In the first winners' bracket game Saturday night, Kevin Burke's three-run homer sparked Bedford Post No. 54 past Exeter Post No. 32. Henry J.Sweeney Post No. 2 of Manchester squared off against Concord Post 21 in the final game of the night.

Jutras 7, Post 79 6

Jutras Post wasted little time scoring in the 10 a.m. openeras it built a 6-2 lead after two innings of play, but Post 79's determination aided the Maroon and White in its patient tying bid that fell a run shy of its mark when the game ran out of innings

In fact, Post 79 Catcher Chris Schneider walloped a ninthinning leadoff home run to trim the Jutras margin to 7-6, but West Side reliever Henry Lemleux bore down and retired the next three hitters to end the game.

Matt Pellerin dropped the green flag on the Jurtras offense in the first inning with an RBI single that scored Seth Stevens.

In the second, Jutras added five more runs to its tally as Lane Kaufman, Craig Johnson, Kevin Fitzgerald, and Pellerin all collebted basehits.

Spiced among the hits was a Shane Frazier sacrifice, a Mike Manni base on balls, a Stevens fielder's choice and a Chris Morin ground ball that was misplayed.

Though Jutras placed runners on base in every inning except the ninth, it added only one more run to its totals in the nin as Kaufman was hit by a pitch, Frazer was walked, and ManniAmerican Legion NH Tournament

Rochester 24, Nashua 7

The Rochester rout of Nashua lacked much of the excitement of the Jutras-Post 79 game as Post No. 7 managed nine runs on nine hits in the top of the first inning to dishearten Coffey Post players and fans

"We jumped on them early," said Rochester manager Dan Connelly, "It made all the difference in the world. Once you get behind here, it's so easy to get down, and so hard to come Rochester never gave Coffey Post that "comeback opportunity. The red-jerseyed legionnaires added 12 more runs in the fourth and led 21-1 after 31/2 innings of play.

"Nine and 12 runs in an inning," thought Connelly aloud. 'We'll take that anytime.

Rochester hit nearly .290 as a team this season and finished with 16 hits in the game.

"Their (Nashua) pitching was struggling, so we took a few pitches, especially in the fourth," said Connelly.

Rochester netted the dozen runs on just three hits. Nashua pitchers walked six in the lethal

The winners of Saturday evening's games face off at 8 p.m. tonight.

Bedford 9. Exeter 3

In Saturday's third game, Kevin Burke hit a three-run firstinning home run to spark Bedford Post to its 9-3 triumph over Exeter as winners' bracket play commenced.

Sweeney Post of Manchester met two-time defending champion Concord Post No. 21 in the nightcap of the winners' twin bill.

Burke's three-run blast to straightaway centerfield plated Ralph Suozzo and Greg LaRocca who had reached ahead of him and staked Bedford to an early 3-1 lead

'We needed to score early," said Bedford Manager Tim O'Connell, "We haven't scored that many runs lately and we were playing the number 1 team from the other district.

"Burke's hit was a key," added Bedford Coach Joe Suozzo.

"It gave us the lead and the confidence we needed. Burke has been a dependable player for us all year long."

Just prior to the tournament, Burke was moved from leadoff to the No. 3 position in the batting order because of his steady

But Burke wasn't the only player who instilled confidence in the winners. In the Exeter third, with two on and one out, Bedford third baseman Tom Roy scooped a ground ball to his left, tagged the runner advancing to third, and fired to first to complete a double play.

Coming off Roy's heads-up execution, Post 54 promptly scored three runs in its next at-bat. LaRocca reached on an error and Burke walked.

After Dave Blanchette singled to load the bases, Ted Brown rapped a base hit to center to plate two runs.

Another Exceter error allowed Brown to score

Exeter climbed back into the game in the fifth after a costly Bedford throwing error allowed Willie Lees to reach second base. Marc Brownjumped on Bedford pitcher Jason Keim's first offering and hit it off the rightfield scoreboard 320 feet away.

Exeter now trailed 6-3. It appeared that Exeter would cut the Bedford advantage further in the seventh, but a heads-up, confidence-building play by Catcher Ralph Suozzo ended the threat prematurely.

Lees walked. Aaron Dougherty singled, and Fred Towne drew an intentional pass to load the Exeter bases with two out.

However, with the runners leading liberally after each pitch, Catcher Suozzo threw behind Towne at first and picked him off the base.

"That play was definitely one of the keys to the game," said Coach Suozzo

"The bases were loaded and our pitching was struggling a bit. The kids called the pickoff, Ted Brown (first baseman) called the Keim found himself in and out of trouble before Tom Roy came on in relief in the dangerous seventh. Keim, who was credited with the win scattered five hits and struck out five. He allowed at least one Exeter baserunner in each inning he worked.

Bedford manufactured two runs in the home half of the frame after hits by Burke and Blanchette placed runners on first and second. Brown's sacrifice bunt advanced the runners. but Burke continued running past third and scored when the return throw to the plate skipped into the Exeter dugout.

Blanchette was awarded home plate on the play

Bedford closed the game's scoring in the eighth when Jeff O'Connell singled and subsequently scored on Ralph Suozzo's line drive off the centerfield

Quaff Victorious In Spicy Living Stakes At Rockingham Park

SPICY LIVING----

"Ridden by Eddie Maple, Quaff ran in the middle of the pack for the first half mile before taking to the outside for the victory.

"I wasn't too concerned at the beginning of the race," said Maple, who rode Closing Bid to the winner's circle in the 1989 New Hampshire Sweepstakes just two weeks ago.

"Coming into today's race I was pretty confident, although I was quite far back for a good part of the race. I think she was a bit too relaxed at first but came alive down the final stretch."

Quaff came from the ninth spot at the half-mile mark and pulled ahead for a two-length lead down the stretch without Maple even showing his whip.

There were some fillies in frent of me that I was worried about but she (Quaff) didn't want to show.

to let them get too far ahead. I did not truly ask her to run until Dance Teacher came to her at the eighth pole. When I did ask her, she drew off impressively and I believe she was a handy winner," Maple said.

Highland Penny, an underdog at 10-1, came from dead last to place second while E.P. Evans' Dance Teacher, the winner of the Grade III Gallorette Handicap at Pimlico, finished third.

"I didn't think that Quaff was better than my horse," Dance Teacher jockey Jean Cruguet said. "My horse may not have been fit enough. I think that she (Dance Teacher) may be a little short on racing. We'll run a lot better next time out."

Quaff paid $6.00 to win, $3.60 to place and $2.80 to show while Highland Penny returned $6.60 to place and $4.00 to show. Dance Teacher was worth $3.80

Setup Men: Baseball's Newest, Least-Appreciated Stars

By BOB HERTZEL Scripps Howard News Service

It was late June, when games were still looked upon as being important to the Pittsburgh Pirates' pennant chances. The St. Louis Cardinals had scored two runs off John Smiley to move within one of the lead. There were two out. The tying run was at second base.

Manager Jim Leyland knew Smiley was tired, so he went to the bullpen. Out of the gate emerged Doug Bair. He struck out dangerous pinch hitter Leon Durham and, in effect, saved the

The box score shows that the save belonged to Bill Landrum who came on later, but it was Bair who recorded the most important out

For his effort, Bair got a handshake. Landrum got a bankable asset that he could take to arbitration.

Welcome to the life of baseball's least appreciated vet newest star - the setup man.

Teams have a stopper, one or two long relievers and, in the middle, one or two setup men. These pitchers' purpose is to keep their team close or ahead until the manager can get to his stopper in the eighth or ninth mmng

"I like my starter to get into the seventh, then I go to the setup guy," Leyland said. "Let mmn give me the seventh and an out or two in the eighth and it's

Name the team and it is the their closer

The Chicago Cubs use Calvin the manager to be fired. Schiraldi to set up Mitch Williams. The San Francisco Giants use Craig Lefferts to set up Steve Bedrosian. The Boston Red Sox use Rob Murphy to set up Lee

In some ways this is a new approach. The role of setup man has not always been designated and often was shared by, say, a couple of struggling starters.

But the role has been there for the past 20 years. "I think they always had a setup man. They just didn't designate him the way they do now." Leyland said.

He points to the ultimate setup situation, that being Ron Davis coming in to set up Goose Gossage with the New York Yankees in 1979-80.

Davis was a strikeout pitcher who blew away the opposition. In 1979-80, he was a combined 23-5 with 16 saves.

In many ways it was easy for Davis, as Pirates pitching coach Ray Miller pointed out

The Yankees would start. say. Ron Guidry and the opposition would load up with righthanded hitters." Miller said. "Now, Davis comes in. Well, they aren't going to send up lefthanded pinch hitters against him in the seventh inning because they knew they would need them for Gossage in the

So Davis fired away. He fired so well that Minnesota traded for him, figuring he could be

He failed miserably, causing

That manager was Ray Mill-

But the setup man's role started earlier than Davis.

"In Cincinnati in the middle 70s, when Sparky Anderson had the Big Red Machine, he used Pedro Borbon that way," said Bair, who shares the Pirates' setup duties with Bob Kipper.

Whitey Herzog in St. Louis has always worked with a "Bullpen By Committee," using three or four pitchers to set up Todd Worrell

You don't worry about the closer," said Leyland, "He has to be able to get both left and right-handed hitters out."

In today's megabucks game in which success is measured by statistics and how they convert into bank balances, it isn't easy for a manager to convince a pitcher to be the setup man. With few numbers to be obtained, the player thinks he can't share in the big money.

"The only numbers a setup man can be concerned with are games and innings pitched," said Jeff Robinson, who is starting for the Pirates but was the setup man for closer Jim Gott last season. "If the team is winning, it's great. If the team isn't winning it's no fun at all."

You are the stand-in for the star. You get them out in the seventh. Someone else shakes hands in the ninth.

Bair has always accepted it. He was being used by Herzog in St. Louis as a setup man as early season with a 2.52 ERA.

The problem was, he was going to arbitration with the rather ordinary numbers of five victories and eight saves.

But he was fortunate. "That was when setup guys just started to get paid for doing that job," he said. Davis had done it for Gossage and been rewarded with a $900,000-a-year contract.

Bair had someone making big money with whom to compare his stats in arbitration. He came out of it with a salary exceeding $400,000

Robinson proved how much you can make as a setup man this season when he received a contract that will pay him $750,000. As a setup man last year he went 11-5 with nine saves and a 3.03 ERA.

But when Gott went down with an injury this year and Robinson was tried as the stopper, he failed just as many setup men had previously.

"There is less pressure as a setup man because there are still a couple of innings left in the game. One mistake doesn't beat you right there, like it does if you are the stopper." Leyland said.

The difference between being a setup man and stopper is dealing with pressure. Consider Robinson's experience as a

'His big pitch is the split-fingered fastball," said Miller, "To throw that you have to be relaxed and you have to find the proper release point. Well, Jeff had just signed that new con-as 1982 when he enjoyed a good tract for big money. Guys may say the money doesn't bother you but that's not true.

"When he was moved to starting, he had time to adjust, to find the release point. A hit didn't beat you and that's why he got better.

Robinson agreed. "The only difference in the two roles," he said, "is that nobody comes in to close for the closer.

Rawley's next foray into writing came after the 1985 season. when a Sarasota woman asked him for suggestions for a local documentary on drug and alcohol awareness. Rawley raided during World War I, starting the bookstores, bought some "how to" books on screenwriting and produced a 30-minute treat-

Those are the fantasies that grab Rawley's attention. And he isn't so interested in living them out as he is in writing them down

In 1982, shortly after he was traded from Seattle to the New York Yankees, Rawley began roughing out the plot for a book that, he said, is "still here, there and everywhere:"

His story, set on three continents during World War I and wrapping up sometime in the 1930s, centers on two American flyers and a young Belgian boy.

"I really want to finish the book," said Rawley, whose favorite authors include John Steinbeck, Ernest Hemingway and Ray Bradbury, as well as mystery writers Elmore Leonard and Raymond Chandler. "A friend of mine has been working

Brenly Returns to S.F. Firing Salvos at Jays, Al

By JOAN RYAN

Scripps Howard News Service SAN FRANCISCO - The news of catcher Bob Brenly's return to the San Francisco Giants spread quickly through the office A cityside reporter sent me a message through the computer: "I just heard! Great news! I've got to call my sister, the No.-1 Brenly fan.

An editor typed out, "I'm calling my wife right now!

And an executive secretary 'Is it true? And will he get his radio show back, I hope?

On the 11 o'clock news, after sportscaster Dan Lovett reported the transaction, anchor Anna Chavez cooed, "Oh, I'm glad he's Never has a 35-year-old, .170 hitter been so missed.

When Brenly's contract with the Giants expired last season after eight years with the club. he signed with Toronto, even though the Giants also offered him a contract. He figured, with the designated hitter in the American League, he'd get more playing time than he would as a backup catcher for the Giants. It didn't work out that way. When the Blue Jays released him 10 days ago. Brenly had had only 88 at-bats, with which he managed one home run and six RBIs.

"First thing I thought about was people saying, 'I told you so," Brenly said from Phoenix, where he'll be playing with the Giants' Triple-A club until the Giants call him up. "People told me I shouldn't leave because I was established here. I was active in charity work and had the broadcasting. I know they'll say, 'You fool. You shouldn't have left in the first place.

'It wasn't an easy decision, but I did what I thought was best for my career at the time. It's a decision I have to live with. If this is my last year, at least I got to see the American League. I got to play in every ballpark in the major leagues.

Before joining the American League, Brenly had been one of its most vocal critics. Now?

"Now I can rag on it with authority. I still hate it. It's a glorified home run derby. It's a home run derby with live pitching. You take three hacks and try to hit it over the fence. And if you don't do it, the next guy takes three hacks and tries to do it.

The A's are the only team that plays a National Leaguetype game. Hit and run, steals, aggressive baseball. And Baltimore early in the season was like

As much as Brenly liked the city of Toronto - he and his family lived in a downtown highrise within walking distance of the Skydome - he disliked the Blue Jays. He calls them "a selfish ballclub, a selfish organization. Guys were putting their own stats before the team." The ones who cared most about winning, players like George Bell, always seemed to be the ones getting ripped in the

George Bell always played hard," Brenly said. "Problem was he said a lot of stupid

As the season wore on, Brenly's greatest challenge became boredom. National anthem singers spent more time on the field than he did. He was pulling down $450,000 a year for changing the relief pitchers company.

Brenly had once told his wife if he ever played the game just for the money, he'd quit. In Toronto, he hit that point. "The only reason I'm going to the ballpark," he admitted to himself one day, "is because they're naving me to go

So when he sensed the Blue Javs were going to release him. he felt relieved. "I could almost smell it in the air, and I was anxiously looking forward to it, he said. "I was happy to get out of there. I didn't want to get caught sitting on the bench. That's why I left the Giants in the first place. It's tough not playing when you still have the burning desire.

Brenly talked with both the Giants and Orioles. He signed with the Giants on Tuesday for three reasons. One, the Giants indicated he could be called up from Triple A before Sept. 1 and thus be eligible for the playoffs.

clothes twice a day and keeping Two, the Giants are not in the American League. And three, returning to the Giants was like going home

> "After the spring and summer I've had, I wanted to go someplace I was familiar with and someplace I knew my family and I would be happy," Brenly said.

The Brenlys moved into their Phoenix apartment Wednesday. By the time Brenly would be called up to San Francisco, school will be about ready to begin, so Joan and their two children will return to Cincinnati, where the house they've been building will be ready

HAWTHORN WOODS, III. (AP) — Here is a hole-by-hole description of Kemper Lakes, a 10-year-old public course where the 71st PGA championship will be played this week

No. 1. Par 4, 406 yards - The drive from an elevated tee on this slight daging right will land in a valley. Out-of-bounds left and a fairway bunker right. The approach shot is uphill to a large green guarded by deep bunkers left and right.

No. 2. Par 4, 391 yards — Requires an occurate drive and pinpoint short iron to a narrow, sloping green with a huge bunker on the left. A lake behind the green will catch long shots left, a back bunker

No. 3. Par 3, 173 yards — Tee shot to bell-shaped green must carry over water. Contoured green is guarded by back bunkers left and light. Green has a back shelf for difficult pin placements.

No. 4. Par 5, 508 yards — Reachable with two well-placed ots. Water right, out-of-bounds left make it a demanding driving hale. econd shot must carry over water to landing area guarded by seven

No. 5. Far 4, 442 yards — Dogleg right plays into prevailing mmer wind. Out-of-bounds left and trees right demand a good drive. Long Iron shat into green is challenged by large bunker left and two oll bunkers right.

No. 6. Par 3, 180 yards - Sneaky hard. Green has a large Sunker that wraps around the front. Two small bunkers front and back oft. A pin placed back right brings lake into play

No. 7. Par 5, 557 yards - Reachable in two shots downwind ly by the langest hitters. Landing area guarded by two large fairway and shot must be played between large burker on the right left and large fairway bunker right. Second shots protected by large bunker right and front bunker left. Contoured green can bring on difficult oin placements.

No. 11. Par 5, 534 yards — Can be reached in two. Drive must avoid large oak trees right and left in landing area. Downhill second shot to green is through an avenue of large oaks. Small narrow green is guarded by retaining wall and a pond. Bunker right and mounds behind the green make a long shot undestrable.

No. 12. Par 4, 393 yards - Only hole without bunkers. Tee shot must be hit through narrow opening of large oaks with little margin for error. Green is guarded by large trees. Second shots require draws or fodes unless drive is perfectly placed.

No. 13. Par 3, 219 yards - Narrow, long, three-leveled green is 47 yards front to back. Protected by large bunkers, one left and two

No. 14. Par 4, 420 yards — Downhill dagleg left. Has 100-yard fairway bunker left and large mounds to right of landing area. Small green is tightly bunkered and large ridge makes back third of green four feet higher than other parts of green.

AWTHORN WOODS, Ill. - The 71st PGA National Championship has more subplots than a soap opera. The tournament that starts on Thursday is more than the year's final event of golf's Grand Slam.

It's the last appearance in a major tournament for Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino before they pass into the Seniors category. It's also 39-year-old Tom Watson's chance to become only the fifth man to complete a career sweep of all four major titles. It's yet another chance for Greg Norman to try to bounce back from yet another major-title near miss. And it's yet another round in the American vs. foreign player fight for golf domination.

It's the end of a two-year scramble for positions on the American Ryder Cup team that will face Europe's best in England next month. And it could mean an early end to the Player of the

That latter category could come about only if Masters champ Nick Faldo of England, U.S. Open title-holder Curtis Strange or British Open winner Mark Calcavecchia could annex the PGA

Of the three, Calcavecchia would appear to have the best chance. A notorious streak player, he has not competed since his playoff victory in the British Open.

Two major titles in a single season - something that hasn't occurred since Watson won the 1982 U.S. and British Opens - almost certainly would provide a player an insurmountable lead in the point standings.

But it is another point list the Ryder Cup list, that will gain a major portion of the attention. It is from that list that 10 of the 12 men on the American team will be chosen.

Points were awarded for top 10 finishes beginning with the first tournament of 1988. The list closes with the PGA, which also awards bonus points.

The top seven players -Calcavecchia, Strange, Chip Beck, Tom Kite, Paul Azinger and Payne Stewart - are virtually assured of places on Eight others are in a battle for the remaining three spots on the point list. They are Ken Green, Mark O'Meara, Mark McCumber, Steve Pate, Joey Sindelar, Bruce Lietzke, Ben Crenshaw, Scott Hoch and Lanny Wadkins.

In addition, Captain Ray Floyd is allowed to pick one player. The 12th spot is reserved for the PGA champion, if he is eligible. If he is not, or if he is among the top-10 point winners, Floyd can pick two players.

Although he has been in an extended slump, Watson's strong performance in the British Open makes him a major contender as one of Floyd's possible selections

For the first time in a long, long time I feel like I'm in control of my game again," Watson said after he finished fourth, two shots out of the British Open playoff.

That solid showing by the man who once dominated golf also added to the possibility he could join Gene Sarazen, Ben Hogan, Nicklaus and Gary Player as the only men to make career sweeps

PGA Course Will Play According to the Wind

By JOE MOOSHIL The Associated Press

HAWTHORN WOODS, Ill. - Kemper Lakes, a 10-year-old public course where the 71st PGA championship will be played this week, is a huge, demanding layout with water coming into play on 11 of the holes.

Emil Esposito, the home pro, figures anywhere from even par to 12-under could win the 72-hole tournament over the 7,197-yard, par 36-36-72 layout.

"It all depends on the wind," said Esposito. "If the wind blows during the tournament, I'd be willing to put up par or 1-under and let them shoot at that. If it isn't blowing, 10 or 12-under can win. That's how good those guys are.

The course record will go down." Esposito, "because somewhere along the line somebody will shoot a 66 or 65."

Only a handful of pros have seen the course. The PGA Grand Slam, a charity exhibition with four leading pros playing with four amateurs, has been held at Kemper Lakes three times.

and set the course record with a 70 but that was broken in 1988 by Larry Nelson with a 69.

Norman was the central figure in a controversy over the 18th hole, a 433-yard par-4 dogleg left with the tee shot carrying over water.

Norman tried a shortcut over the corner of the lake in 1988, hitting a drive of some 300 vards downwind onto the green. Last April three 30-foot honey locust trees were planted, theoretically blocking the shortcut.

That didn't stop Norman last Memorial Day. He tried it again, drove over the trees and landed in a greenside bunker.

"I might try it in the tournament, it depends on the situation," said Norman. "If you don't carry the water, you're looking at double bogey.

The rough will be four inches during the tournament and Exposito said "You have to use a 7-, 8- or 9-iron to get out. Only a strong guy like Norman can get out of it with a 6-iron. You have options on this course and you'd better respect it or it will jump at you with a double bogey real

The Associated Press SIOUX FALLS, S.D. - The story is the same at public golf course in most parts of the country. It's 6 a.m. and already dozens of groups are waiting to fee off. There is only one thing to do: Go to the Dakotas.

South Dakota has 104 golf courses, that's 18 holes for every 12,000 people in the state — the second best ratio in the nation. Who's No. 1?

While other states have struggled to keep up with the golf boom in the country, the Dakotas have had no problem.

"It's kind of interesting, but there are more courses than counties," said Ted Thoms, a real estate broker from Sioux Falls.

In many parts of the country, municipal courses on weekend mornings look like jammed highways.

"But the number of courses is going to have to catch up with the trend," he said.

So many golfers, so few courses, so much frustration.

"It's incredible back East, said Thoms. "Most municipal courses don't take tee times, so you're forced to go to the course. get one and then go home and take a nap before playing."

That problem doesn't exist in South Dakota. Most public links take tee times, and if they're booked up, chances are good that another course is just a short drive away.

One reason South Dakota has so many courses stems from the days before the farm crisis when there was plenty of money available to rural communities from the Farmers Home Administration

Gilbert Outlasts Wheaton in Volvo

Faces Pugh in Today's Final

Vt. (AP) - Brad Gilbert, the only high seed left in the Volvo International tennis tournament, took advantage of David Wheaton's match-point double fault yesterday to join Jim Pugh in today's final.

Gilbert, who was runnerup last week at Washington, was pushed to three sets by Wheaton, a surprise semifinalist who upset top-seeded Andre Agassi in the third round on Thursday. Gilbert won 5-7, 7-6 (7-5), 6-4.

Pugh, ranked first in the world in doubles but only 59th in singles, double faulted on his first match point but beat Jim Grabb 6-2, 6-4 with a service winner.

Gilbert, the tournament's third seed, and Pugh will meet today for the $114,000 first prize. The runnerup will receive $57,000.

Wheaton, a Minneapolis native ranked 122nd in the world in his second year as a pro, broke Gilbert twice in the first set and went up 3-0 in the second before Gilbert battled back with passing shots and an occasional ace.

Gilbert took the tiebreaker with a passing shot and broke Wheaton in the fourth and 10th games of the third set.

"It was a combination of him (raising) his game a little bit and me being a little nervous and a little tentative," Wheaton said. "I missed a couple of shots when I needed to make them, and usually I do make those shots. trouble making them."

"He has a big serve and does a lot of things well," the 11thranked Gilbert said of Wheaton. improvement like Chang or a lot more."

Second-seeded Michael Chang was ousted in the quarterfinals Friday

"I wanted him to at least work to win the match," Gilbert said of Wheaton. "He didn't play a great game '

Pugh, who is seeded 14th, has overcome great odds to make it to the final. He was down 4-3 in the third set of two of his previous matches, and fought off two match points in a third.

"I hadn't played for two weeks, and I was a little rusty in the beginning," said the 25-yearold from Burbank, Calif., who won his first singles title only three weeks ago in Newport. "Now I feel like I'm just lucky to still be in the tournament, let alone in the finals. So I'm playing a lot looser now.

Both he and Grabb were bothered by gusty winds on Stratton Mountain, which affected their serve-and-volley games. But Pugh was steadier, breaking Grabb three times in the first

"I definitely had a hard time feeling the ball out there, and he kept the ball in play," said Grabb, of Tucson, Ariz., who is ranked 114th. "It didn't seem to affect him. I don't know if it's two hands (on the racket), or what it

TEEING OFF

Some truths about lies

Many shots in golf are performed from areas that are slightly sloped, known as lies. The important lesson in lies is to not adjust your stance to fit the slope, but rather to remain rigid with both legs straight, and produce your normal shot.

Uphill

You must try to keep your body at right angles to the slope. The increased weight on the back leg (shown) will tend to pull the shot to the left as the weight transference is difficult on the downswing.

Note: different for left-handed golfers SOURCE: Golfing School, Eddie Birchenough

Downhill

When playing a downhill lie, the converse occurs. Keep your body at right angles to the slope. The shot will tend to push to the right due to restricted backswing and because of a tendency to move ahead of the ball at impact.

Langer, Gilder Share St. Jude Classic Lead

By SKIP LATT AP Sports Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) -Bernhard Langer and Bob Gilder both survived shaky front nines yesterday to emerge as co-leaders after the third round of the $1 million Federal Express St. Jude Classic.

Langher overcame bogevs on the first and eighth holes at the 7.006-yard, par-71 Tournament Players Club course to shoot a 3-under-par 68, while Gilder offset five bogeys, three on the front nine, with six birdies for a 70. Both were tied at 9-underpar 204 after 54 holes.

Billy Ray Brown, who had an even-par 71, was alone at 205. Bob Tway and Mike Donald, who each had a share of the lead during the round, were next at 206. Tway shot a 68 and Donald had a 69.

Second-round leader Ed Fiori soared to a 76 and was four shots behind the leaders.

Langer, Gilder and Brown all birdied the par-5, 528-yard 16th hole to go 9-under, while Donald also birdied to tie Tway, who parred the hole, at 8-under.

Brown saw his share of the lead evaporate on the 464-yard 17th hole when he missed a 25-foot par-saving putt.

Donald and Tway fell two shots back when they bogeyed the par-4, 437-yard 18th hole.

Donald, who started the day at George and Phil Gimas.

5-under, took the lead from Fiori when he birdied the par-3 11th hole to go 10-under while Fiori was bogeying the eighth.

Gilder, who made the turn at 9-under, moved into a tie with a birdie on No. 10 and found himself alone in the lead two holes later despite battling to salvage a bogey-5 at the 12th hole when Donald, playing one hole ahead of hi, took a double bogey on No. 13.

But Gilder bogyeed the 13th to fall into a three-way tie with Langer and Tway, who made four straight birdies on the front nine to move to 8-under.

Bogeys at No. 8 and No. 9 dropped Tway to 6-under, but he moved up with birdies on the 11th and 16th holes before missing a 15-foot par putt on the final hole.

Martin Out To Prove Looks Are Deceiving

By JIM DONALDSON Scripps Howard News Service

SMITHFIELD, R.I. - Sammy Martin looks the same. Which is to say, given his receding hairline, that he looks closer to 43 than 23

But people in the New England Patriots organization say Martin is not the same player they drafted last year In the fourth round out of Louisiana State.

"If you looked at tapes of him last year in training camp, and then looked at tapes of him this spring in mini-camp, you'd swear it was a different guy," said Patriots vice-president Bucko Kilroy.

Martin looks like a guy who'd be more at home in the bayou catching catfish than catching passes in the National Football League.

The story still is told at LSU of how, when Martin visited Baton Rouge as a senior in high school, an assistant coach mistook him for a recruit's father.

But appearances can indeed be deceiving. And, having made the transition from running back at LSU to wide receiver in the NFL, he now appears ready to leave opposing defensive backs tearing out their hair.

"He's made unbelievable progress," Kilroy said. "He is fast. He might be the fastest one out there - and that includes Stanley Morgan and Irving Fryar.

Martin has run the 100 in 9.2 and the 40 in 4.4, but it is his quick-cutting ability, even more than his speed, that dazzles Patriots receivers coach Harold Jackson.

"He has the best cutting ability of anybody on the team," Jackson said. "He can cut on a dime. It seems like he can change direction in mid-air.

Sammy can just explode out of his cuts," said Jackson.

"He's like Stanley, in that he can reach back and go into that fifth gear. And he does everything with such fluidity.

He may look smooth now, but learning to play wide receiver wasn't easy for Martin, even though he was frequently used as a pass catcher coming out of the backfield at LSU

"It was tough," Martin said. "It was very challenging. I knew it was going to be. But, now that I've gotten a lot of the learning process out of the way, I feel as if I'm a different person."

The difference is readily noticeable.

Patriots Receivers Coach

"The difference in him." Jackson said, "is like night and day. He's much more relaxed now. Like most rookies, he was all tensed up last year. Now, with a year's experience under his belt, he's calmed down. He's more comfortable and more relaxed because he knows what he's doing.

"Last year," said Jackson, "he was a project. Now we want to see him explode. He has the ability to do that. He worked hard in the offseason, particularly as far as catching the ball with his hands, rather than trapping it against his body. When he came back this spring for mini-camp, you could see the

"Like any receiver, I want to play more and catch more balls. I think I can burn any defensive back in the league if I do the right things."

—Sammy Martin, Patriots Wide Receiver

SAMMY MARTIN stretches out for a gain on a kickoff return last season against the New York Jets at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J. Martin, who established himself as a fine kick off returner in his rookie season, hopes to get more plays from scrimmage as a wide receiver in 1989.

he said. "I think I can burn any defensive back in the league if I do the right things.

There is no doubt in his mind that moving to wide receiver was the right thing for him.

"The Patriots told me they were drafting me as a wide receiver," he said. "Since I'm light and small, I figured that was my best bet to play.

With The Pats RAYMOND BERRY

MITHFIELD, R.I. (UPI) - New England Patriots head coach Raymond Berry has never been known as a strict disciplinarian.

Berry is a pretty mellow, laid back kind of guy, and that's how he runs his football club - not to imply he doesn't put his foot down when it's necessary. But if he were a chair instead of a coach, he'd be a recliner.

Riding

In The Slow

Lane

At the Patriots' 1989 training camp, which has never been regarded as one of the more strenuous camps around the National Football League, Berry is relaxing even more than usual.

One of Berry's primary goals this season is to keep his players healthy. Almost every sentence about a particular position is prefaced or followed by the 'if-we-can-stay-healthy' clause.

Berry hopes that a slow warm-up in the preseason will result in a quicker start to the regular season by his talent-laden squad, instead of copying last year's 2-5 start.

We are taking it a little slower in the institution (of plays), and spending less time on the field," Berry explained. "We're pacing the transition back into full pads and hitting.

We feel this particular approach is the best thing we've done for the players.

Berry has devised two-a-day practice sessions, a result of figuring out how to get sufficient work for Tony Eason, Steve Grogan, Doug Flutie and Marc Wilson, the team's quarterbacks:

We needed to work four quarterbacks which brought about brainstorming over how to get it done," he explained. "We hit on working two in the morning, two in the afternoon.

"It's been a very productive way to go," he added

The system also gives players time to reacquaint their bodies with the abuse of professional football. If somebody tells the coach he needs a practice off to rest an ache, in most cases he gets the

"It's giving us a chance to get our legs up under us," said 13-year veteran Stanley Morgan. "We go full speed once a day (in the afternoon). I think it's really great.

On the hotter days, which has been about half of the camp so far, the afternoon practices start early and only last a half hour One of the reasons camp has shifted into the slow lane is that Berry has had the time to take things a little slower. The veterans reported to the Bryant College facility four days.

earlier than usual. In the past rookies got a week working by_ themselves, this year they only had three days.

"It's hard to say." said the 34-year-old Morgan when asked if the extra time has made a difference with the veterans. "Maybe with some of the younger guys."

"Last year." said Jackson, "he was a project. Now we want to see him explode. He has the ability to do that. He worked hard in the offseason, particularly as far as catching the ball with his hands, rather than trapping it against his body. When he came back this spring for mini-camp, you could see the dBrerence."

Coach Raymond Berry, himself a Hall of Fame receiver, has been impressed with Martin's pass-catching ability.

"Sammy has real soft, fluid hands and outstanding cutting ability and acceleration," Berry said. "He should be one of the most effective runners, after the catch, of any receiver in the Martin's primary contribution last year was as a kick returner. He caught just four passes for 51 yards, but returned 31 kickoffs an average of 23.7 yards, including a 95-yard touchdown against the Colts.

This season. Martin would like to play a bigger role in the New England offense

"Like any receiver, I want to play more and catch more balls."

There is no doubt in his mind that moving to wide receiver was the right thing for him.

"The Patriots told me they were drafting me as a wide receiver," he said, "Since I'm light and small. I figured that was my best bet to play."

Having played last season at about 165 pounds, Martin this year has bulked up to 176 without having lost any speed or, more importantly, quickness.

"My 10- and 20-yard times are real quick," he said, "I can be at full speed in two or three strides.

Martin has taken it in stride that the Patriots have added three receivers since last season — first-round draft choice Hart Lee Dykes, fourth-round pick Michael Timpson, and veteran free agent Mike Jones

"It doesn't exactly put me at ease." Martin said, "but it certainly doesn't make me feel insecure.

Last year, perhaps, it might have. But Martin's a different person this season.

E.J. Junior Promises New Beginning in Miami

By STEVEN WINE The Associated Press

MIAMI - Defense and drugs were part of the Miami Dolphins' downfall last season, and E.J. Junior wants to help with both problems.

The Dolphins signed the former Pro Bowl linebacker after the Phoenix Cardinals decided his skills had slipped and left him unprotected last spring

Junior, 29, says he plans to end a three-year slump with big plays for a defense that ranked 26th in the NFL last year. And for a team surrounded by speculation about drug use at the end of the season. Junior says he can provide a voice of experience.

In 1983, Junior went on probation for a felony drug conviction and received a four-game suspension from the NFL. He kicked his habit and became a drug counselor

"I've been dealing with my problem longer than anybody else that's playing in the league now," he said. "So it's easier for me to understand what they're going through."

With training camp just under way, Junior has yet to meet many of his new teammates. What will he tell them?

'Hey, just take one day at a time. The only person that can control your destiny

"Don't throw it all away for a one-night high or a euphoria that's only going to last 10 or 15 minutes. Because once you come down, if you have a problem you're trying to deal with, the problem is still going to be

Junior's problem the past three seasons, he said, is that the Cardinals coaches lost confidence in him. He lost confidence in himself, and became tentative.

'If you make a mistake, you ought to make it full speed," he said. "E.J. Junior did not play like E.J. Junior. That's the bottom line. I failed to do what I was capable of doing.

Early returns are mixed. The eight-year veteran picked up the Dolphins' system quickly in mini-camp last spring. But he was several pounds over his playing weight of 240 when he reported to camp last weekend, and South Florida's humidity left him wobbly at times during the early workouts.

"This is an important season for E.J.." defensive coordinator Tom Olivadotti said. "If his physical approach could match his mental approach, he'd be OK.

Bengals' Brooks in an 'Ickey' Situation

By JACK BRENNAN Scripps Howard News Service

WILMINGTON, Ohio - In approaching the 1989 season. Cincinnati Bengals running back James Brooks is ignoring his late-season 1988 numbers and focusing on his own gut feelings.

"When you've got what it takes, you've got it," Brooks said, "and I know I've still got it. I know nobody can take it away from me, and that's why I know I'm going to have a good year."

Common sense would indicate that Brooks is in no way deluding himself. He looks every bit his usual self here on the practice field - strong, lithe, and above all else, quick.

But still, questions persist. What happened to Brooks during the last six games of last season (including playoffs), when he averaged only 33 yards rushing and 17 yards pass receiving per game?

Was he merely the victim of a temporary shift in the team's offensive philosophy, or could the Bengals actually be in the process of downgrading his role to that of supporting actor to star fullback Ickey Woods and the straight-ahead power running

The answer won't come until the Bengals start playing games for keeps again, but coach Sam Wyche insists that he is not so foolish as to take the latter

"J.B. is a real all-pro who puts pressure on the defense in any number of ways," Wyche said. "I'm not going to apologize for the style of football we featured late last year because we were winning, and there are only so many snaps in every game.

"But you need all of your weapons to get through a long season and hopefully through the playoffs, and we certainly plan to make use of all the ones we have.'

The underlying assumption here is that nothing works forever, and that even though the Bengals might begin 1989 with Woods up the middle as their primary offensive play, opposing defenses eventually yards and 287 receving for the season. "People were saying, 'What's going on with you?' and there was nothing I could do about it.

"I did get my pride hurt a little bit late last year," said Brooks, 30, who still managed to make the Pro Bowl with 931 rushing er for The Cincinnati Post.

'But now I just look back on it and laugh. I know things are going to turn around. Defenses weren't keving that much on Ickey even late in the regular season, because everybody still didn't know what kind of player he was, but pretty soon they'll be ganging up on him inside the same way they used to gang up on me outside

And when they do, well, I'm just waiting to show them that they still have to worry about

Obtained before the 1984 season in a straight-up trade with San Diego for a soon-to-bewashed-up Pete Johnson, Brooks broke Johnson's season club rushing record with 1,087 yards in 1986. Brooks is only a couple good seasons from challenging Johnson for the all-time Bengals lead, standing second on the career list with 3,633 yards to Johnson's 5,402.

Lomax Says He'll Play With Cards

By The Associated Press

A gimpy Neil Lomax sidestepped retirement yesterday and said he would continue to quarterback the Phoenix Cardinals.

The 30-year-old Lomax, a nine-year veteran and two-time Pro Bowl selection, has limped through training camp with his hip problem, which was diagnosed last year as degenerative arthritis. He said doctors have told him he will need a total hip replacement someday and that he risked more damage by continuing to play

I plan to continue to try to participate with the team and see if my condition improves." Lomax said in a statement.

A second-round draft pick in 1981 from Portland State, Lomax first hurt his hip in 1982. It has gotten progressively worse.

He went to the Pro Bowl in 1984 and 1987 and ranks second in virtually every passing category in the club's all-time records, with 1,818 completions in 3.153 attempts for 22,771 yards and 136 touchdowns.

Team officials and Lomax said they "do not plan to make further comment on Lomax's medical condition until the situation warrants.'

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) - Denver's Tony Dorsett, the NFL's No. 2 all-time rusher, underwent major reconstructive knee surgery yesterday, leaving his football future in jeopardy.

Dorsett, 35, injured his left Thursday in a pon-contact thinking he might lose fewer players to injuries.

"There's actually not much difference," he said, "Two-adays, one-a-days, it hasn't cut back on the injuries. We've had the same number of injuries."

Cowboys-Chargers

Steve Walsh had a perfect day in his first NFL test, going 6-for-6 for 74 yards in the Cowboys' 14-3 scrimmage victory against San Diego.

Walsh, selected in the supplementary draft, is battling No. 1 pick Troy Aikman for the starting job. Aikman went 3-for-5 for 26 yards

Jimmy Johnson, who coached Walsh at the University of Miami last year before coming to the Cowboys, said he won't name a starting quarterback until the final exhibition game against the Houston Oilers on Sept. 2.

Giants-Jets

The Jets defeated the Giants 24-20 at Lehigh University in a 96-play controlled scrimmage in which backup quarterbacks Jeff Hostetler and Kyle Mackey sparkled.

Walton is pretty much set at quarterback with Ken O'Brien starting and Pat Ryan as the backup. Mackey, who was on injured reserve with a shoulder injury last season, could be Walton's No. 3 quarterback, if he decides to keep that many.

Hostetler hit six of nine passes for 131 yards and one touchdown, a 65-yard scoring play with Odessa Turner on the to keep three quarterbacks this Giants' first of four 12-play sing an arthroscope, Broncos team physician Dr. Roger Greenlierg reconstructed the anderior cruciate ligament and repaired the cartilage. The medial collateral ligament will be allowed to heal on its own.

Dorsett, 35, injured his left Thursday in a non-contact anterior cruciate ligament, a torn lateral cartilage and a partial tear of the medial collatcrattigament.

The knee did not need to be opened up. "It's becoming more common to do reconstruction through an arthroscope." trainer Steve Antonopulos said.

Because the arthroscope subjects the knee to less trauma, Dorsett will require a minimum of about six months' recovery time, instead of the 12 months usually associated with fullscale knee surgery

"We anticipate a full recovery," Antonopulos said. "The doctors are very optimistic. The knee is very tight now.

He should be fully recovered from the injury, but it remains to be seen about his football career. I don't know what his plans are. It will be his decision to make

Coach Dan Reeves also said he was unaware of Dorsett's plans.

At Age 34, Jeter Still on the Field

Pats' New DE Has Had Long Career

By HOWARD ULMAN The Associated Press

Giants are coming to town and Angeles. Gary Jeter smiles at the thought.

He ticks off the names of *former teammates he might see. Lawrence Taylor, Phil Simms. Joe Morris. Then he stops. He doesn't think any others are still with New York. Many have left the NEL

"I just don't know why I'm still playing," the 34-year-old Jeter. now a defensive end with the New England Patriots, said. "I'm just totally amazed."

He remembers a conversation with Bill Parcells, the Giants' coach, after they traded him to the Los Angeles Rams on April 13 1983

"I never will forget what Bill said to me," Jeter recalled. "He brought me in his office and he said, 'Gary, you're going to probably go out and have a great season next year.

"And he said, 'you know what happens a lot of times? Most guys, when they go from one team to another, their first year is good, but then the years after that are not as good."

Jeter had spent six years with the Giants. He played well enough to spend the next six with the Rams. And now he's with the Patriots.

He can prove Parcells right by having an outstanding first season with his new team.

He's already proven Parcells wrong. He had a good opening season with the Rams but hardly declined afterward. He led the Rams in sacks in 1985, 1986 and 1987. Last season, he only finished second but had a career Parcells' parting speech. "My him.

No big deal," Jeter said of being in the same camp as the Giants, who took him with the fifth pick of the 1977 draft.

Very big deal, New England defensive line coach Ed Khayat said of Jeter's presence on the Patriots after his offseason signing as an unprotected free

'We looked at a lot of film," Khayat said. "He was just as quick and fast as we had ever seen him

"When he came to camp, he was even quicker than he seemed on film.

Besides his speed, Jeter uses his head and his hands exceptionally well to rush the quarter-

"Knowing what I want to do before I do it, that's the key," he said. "You have to have that anticipation. It's like anything. You have to want to get there before you get there.

Jeter, not an exceptionally huge defensive end at 6-foot-4 and 260 pounds, has very strong

"I started doing pullups about 15 years ago because I had a pinched nerve in my shoulder and I just developed hand high 111/2 sacks. "That's one strength," he said. CANTON, Ohio - Terry Bradshaw, Mel Blount, Art Shell and Willie Wood knew the joy of winning when they starred in the National Football League.

Yesterday, they shared that feeling again when they were inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame

Blount said it wasn't easy being on the ground floor during the Steelers' building years.

"The first three or four years were very difficult," he said.

"First of all, we had to clean up our image in a town that didn't fit our character. Pittsburgh was known as a dirty steel mill town. The players were known as a bunch of guys who would drink and get in bar fights. So we had a difficult task in front of us. We had to turn around our image and gain the confidence and respect of the fans. And we had to win. That was the only way to do it.

Can you tell WHERE the photo was taken?

Think of a picture that would come after the scene in the paper.

Can you find the name of the person who took the photo?

Describe what would be happening.

Are there any people in the photo? Are their names given?

Repeat all of the steps above for as many interesting photos as you can find in today's newspaper.

Is there a story to go with the photo?

HINT: Remember that photos tell the story too! There are often clues in the photo that will help you in learning to read

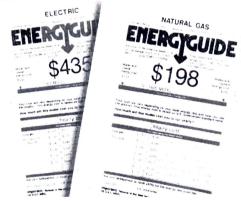

Is so, give the 5 W's - who, what, when, where, why. If not, are the 5 W's given in the information below or beside the photo?

SAVE OVER

Save over $200.00 per year by converting to a gas hot water heater. With the EnergyNorth CONVERT . TO . GAS program, you can rent a standard 40 gallon gas water heater for only $9.50 per month. Electric water heaters cost twice as much as gas to operate. A gas water heater is safe, clean, efficient and economical. EnergyNorth will provide free installation, and can adapt a standard gas water heater for an all electric home. For more information, call EnergyNorth at one of the locations listed below.

Elliott Resigned to Racing's Ups and Downs

By MIKE HARRIS AP Motorsports Writer

Bill Elliott knows first-hand the ups and downs of auto racing.

In 1985, Elliott won 11 races, 11 poles and a still-record $2.3 million.

But it was Darrell Waltrip who won the Winston Cup title that

The big rap against Elliott was that he couldn't win on the short tracks and, until he did, he wouldn't win the championship.

So Elliott learned how to win on the short tracks and won his first Winston Cup title in 1988.

He came into this season as one of the favorites and immediately ran into a huge roadblock, breaking his left wrist in a crash during practice for the season-opening Daytona 500.

It took a half season to get his wrist back in shape and his team's racing program back to top level, but the red-haired driver from Dawsonville, Ga., has leaped from 33rd in the standings to fourth behind Dale Earnhardt.

"This stuff is a roller coaster ride," Elliott said last week at Talladega, Ala. "There are going to be ups and there are going to be downs. In fact, there are probably going to be more downs than ups. You've got to make the best of it.

"I know anything can happen in this sport. The main thing I want to be is competitive. When you get competitive and stay competitive, you put yourself into position to win races.'

TOMMY KENDALL, a threetime IMSA GTU champion, will try his hand at driving a stock car next week at NASCAR's Budweiser at the Glen Winston Cup event.

The 22-year-old Kendall, a senior at UCLA, who also is racing in the SCCA Trans-Am and Chevrolet Corvette series' this season, will drive a Chevrolet Monte Carlo owned by Rick Hendrick.

Hendrick, a North Carolina businessman, regularly fields cars for Winston Cup stars Darrell Waltrip, Geoff Bodine and Ken Schrader and last year drove his own car to a 15th-place finish at Watkins Glen.

ple regard Brazil's 29-year-old Ayrton Senna as the world's greatest driver.

The defending Formula One champion already has won 17 races and holds the all-time record of 34 poles in less than six full seasons.

Some people have said that Senna is reckless. He denies it.

"Contrary to what some suggest, I do not take unnecessary risks either on a flying lap in qualifying or in traffic during the race," he told a London newspaper before the French Grand Prix last month.

'Each maneuver is calculated, like most things in my life,' Senna said. "I weigh up the situation confronting me as quickly as possible, then react. You cannot afford to be hesi-

"I know Winston Cup and Indy cars are the top divisions, but I guess where I wind up basically depends on where the opportunities open up first."

Triple Crown Series Third Leg Races Set Friday Night at Lee

I,EE — The third leg of the Budweiser Triple Crown Series, the deciding round for the '89 series in each of Lee USA Speedway's four divisions, will be decided this Friiday night at the Lee oval. Extra distance in the features and added money is on tap for the pro stocks, late models, streets and hobbies, along with the Cam II Racing Fuels Lau Leaders award.

After two rounds, defending series champion and 1988 pro stock titlist Mike Weeden of Plaistow is again on top with a total of 62 points. Weeden most likely will be challenged by Steve Knowlton of Ipswich, Mass., two points behind. Other top pro stock guns in contention for the triple crown honors include Bob Vencis, Gary Gaudette, Pete Madden, Pete Frappier and Bob Cotton.

Mitch Wendell of Derry holds a 14-point lead over secondplace contender Pat Patten of Belmont in the late models. The 1988 late model champion, Rick Baril of Lowell, Mass., Charlie Dimon of Rochester and Bob Bolduc of Derry, last year's triple crown champion are likely to give Wendell a run for his money.

In the street stock division, Ed Collins of Deerfield, recipient of the 1988 hobby stock crown, is deadlocked at the top of the point standings with Damon Tavoularis of Pelham. These two are expected to shoot it out on the high banks, as they have all is eason, for the division championship.

John DiBurro of Haverhill, Mass., is the frontrunner in the hobby stocks division, ahead of John Arvo of Ipswich, Mass., with a comfortable lead in the division. Other top hobby stocks drivers include David Mountain, Bill Clement and Keith Martel.

Pit gates open at 4 p.m. Friday, and the first qualifier goes to the grid at 7:30.

Saratoga: Where The Sport of Kings Vacations in August

By CHRIS CAROLA The Associated Press

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. - It took an Irish pug to bring the sport of kings to the "Queen of Spas," where for most of the remainder of August Saratoga Race Course will reign over the thoroughbred racing world.

Saratoga, America's oldest track, began its 122nd racing season Wednesday, exactly 125 years after it first opened.

With the opening come the gamblers, tourists, horsemen and hustlers, who swell the city's population to two and three times its normal size of 26,000

It also means the beginning of a parade of human excess and equine splendor that has flourished since Abraham Lincoln was in office.

It began in 1863, when gambler and former bare-knuckle boxing champion John Morrissey staged four days of racing with the help of some wealthy backers. The following year, a newly formed racing association moved the races across the road to a new track, Saratoga Race

Thoroughbred races have been held there ever since. Started 10 years before Churchill Downs, home of the Kentucky Derby, the track quickly caught on with Saratoga's summer visitors.

Mizlou Betting on 24-Hour Sports News Format

By BILL MODOONO Scripps Howard News Service

There was a time when the idea of a network devoted entirely to sports was looked upon with wonder

Sports? All day? How can you fill that time? What sports can there be at 9 in the morning? And who is going to watch?

It's taken about a decade, but ESPN has answered most of the questions, although not all of them to everybody's satisfaction. Nonetheless, ESPN, the first sports cable network, figured out a way to turn a profit as well as televise National Football League games.

Which means, (this is television, remember) it's time to come up with another farfetched

America has been declared officially ready for a network devoted entirely to sports news. A sports network with no sporting events, no half-hour fishing shows and no exercise programs. Just sports news, scores, highlights, interviews, live remotes and a sprinkling of brief fea-

It will certainly be heaven to people who bet. And to people who do not have the patience to sit through an entire sporting event and prefer just the highlights. And to people who have no tolerance for so-called "minor sports

"We're not going to do a lot of soccer, rodeo or equestrian sports," Steinlauf said. "We'll start each half hour with the big three - baseball, basketball and football. We'll give the greatest amount of time to the sports with the greatest appeal to a national audience.

No one figures to watch SNN for any extended period of time. In fact, SNN is hoping that within 20-25 minutes, a sports fan will get all the information he needs. If sports fans get used to doing that once a day, SNN will succeed.

Saratoga: The Place To Race in August

-SARATOGA-

"Bringing a track to Saratoga was a natural because there had always been gambling in Saratoga." said City Historian Martha Stonequist.

One of those gamblers was Morrissey, a broad-chested Irishman raised in Troy, N.Y. A fierce gangleader-turned-prizefighter, he earned the nickname "Old Smoke" after being pinned to a pile of hot coals during a street fight.

Later, as a Tammany Hall protege, Morrissey used his connections to open a casino in Saratoga in 1861, eventually abandoning his pugnacious ways for the life of a gentleman in "the Queen of Spas.

Saratoga had been a popular resort town for 30 years prior to the track's arrival the main attractions being the social life to make." contered around the many ha-

The Travers is the highlight of every Saratoga season, as it has been since it was first run in 1864. Over the years, however, the importance of the Triple Crown races and the emergence of the Breeders' Cup have taken some of the lustre off "The Mid-Summer Derby

But with a $1 million purse and a history of great matchups - Jaipur and Ridan, Affirmed and Alydar - the Travers remains one of the sport's best

"I don't think it's fair to say we've been diminished," said Michael Veitch, a racing writer and editor of New York Thoroughbred magazine. "It's fair to say Saratoga is one of the most important stops for a champion

Saratoga had been a popular resort town for 30 years prior to the track's arrival, the main attractions being the social life centered around the many hotels and numerous mineral springs.

But, Stonequist said, "there's only so much water you can drink and so many baths you can take.

The races offered a new distraction for the railroad tycoons and bankers who flocked to Saratoga even while the Civl War raged.

'Saratoga never really floundered during the Civil War. Stonequist said. "Saratoga never stopped being popular."

By the 1870s, the goings on of the rich and famous were being chronicled by Henry James and Harper's Weekly, and reviled by others. In the eyes of one social critic, Saratoga and Newport, R.I., were evil twins, with Saratoga playing Sodom to Newport's Gomorrah.

In fact, the deeds of the rich seemed to get more attention in Saratoga during its short summer season than they received anywhere else during the rest of the year.

Stories abounded of men like John Warne, "Bet-a-Million" Gates and Diamond Jim Brady. afternoon at the races. Brady's tastes leaned toward gargantuan meals and diamonds, which he even had sewn on his underwear managed to shut down the casinos just before World War I, and four decades later Senate investigations did the same houses, extravagant night clubs offering illicit gambling and top-notch entertainment, and all run by organized crime.

Except for 1911 and 1912. when anti-gambling crusaders succeeded in closing the track, and a three-year period during World War II, the horses have been running at Saratoga every August for 126 years

During that time, the track has gained a reputation as being the graveyard of favorites.

Many of racing's greatest horses have suffered stunning upsets at Saratoga, from Man o' War to Secretariat, the former losing the only race of his career here, the latter losing to an unlikely longshot named Onion.

The biggest upset of all, however, was in the 1930 Travers Stakes. Gallant Fox, hot off his Triple Crown-winning campaign, was beaten by 100-1 in place by 1:30 p.m. Wednesday,

"I don't think it's fair to say we've been diminished," said Michael Veitch, a racing writer and editor of New York Thor-oughbred magazine. "It's fair to say Saratoga is one of the most important stops for a champion to make.

Saratoga has been a traditional proving ground for future champions, many of which get their first taste of competition here. Secretariat, Affirmed. Foolish Pleasure and Conquistador Cielo all won stakes races here as 2-year-olds.

'It's still considered, in the East, the place where most owners would like to see their 2-year-olds win a race," said Veitch, a Saratoga native and cousin to trainer John Veitch.

This is a great place for horses to be," Veitch said. "The air is better and the water is better. It's a real natural setting for a thoroughbred.

Horses change a lot when they come to Saratoga," echoed Hall of Fame jockey Angel Cordero. "The horse has the tendency to relax more, eat better. They actually run better than they do in New York (City).

If horses seem to find rejuvenation under Saratoga's pines and elms, so do people. Jockeys, trainers and employees of the New York Racing Association, which runs Saratoga along with the Belmont and Aqueduct race Gates once lost $400,000 in one tracks in the New York City area, consider their month at "the Spa" a working vacation.

"You always look forward to it," said NYRA spokesman Steven Schwartz. "We're a natural But anti-gambling legislation focus when we come up here You really feel appreciated.

About 600 NYRA employees come up from New York to work Saratoga, he said. In addition, thing to Saratoga's famed lake NYRA employes another 2,000 people locally, including hundreds of pari-mutuel clerks, food service workers and security guards.

That doesn't include approximately 5,000 backstretch workers - grooms, stable foremen, exercise riders — needed to look after 1,700 thoroughbreds stabled in 85 barns.

Frankly, it is unique in the racing world," Schwartz said. Most other racing operations are individudal entities. This is the equivalent of the circus breaking down a tent and moving it from one town to another

More than 5,600 people and 165 tons of equipment have to be moved 175 miles in less than 48 hours, beginning last Monday evening when the last race ended at Belmont.

But other than the odd breakdown or lost truck, everything is
